The Concluſion of the Treaty of Commerce and Navigation, between France and the united Netherlands.

XXVII. ALL the Subjects and Inhabitants of the ſaid united Provinces, ſhall reciprocally enjoy the ſame Rights, Liberties, and Exemptions in their Traffick and Commerce, in the Ports, Roads, Seas, and Dominions of his ſaid Majeſty, as it has been already ſaid his Majeſty's Subjects ſhall enjoy in thoſe of the ſaid Lords the States, and in the open Sea, it being to be underſtood, that the Equality ſhall be reciprocal in all Reſpects on both Sides, and even in Caſe hereafter the ſaid Lords the States ſhould be in Peace, Friendſhip and Neutrality, with any Kings, Princes and States, that may become the Enemies of his ſaid Majeſty; each of the two Parties being reciprocally to uſe the ſame Conditions and Reſtrictions expreſſed in the Articles of the preſent Treaty, which relates to Traffick and Commerce.

XXVIII. And the better to aſſure the Subjects of the ſaid Lords the States, that no Violence ſhall be committed by the ſaid Men of War, all Captains of the King's Ships, and others of his Majeſty's Subjects, ſhall be prohibited to moleſt or damnify them in any matter or thing whatſoever, on pain of being made accountable in their Perſons and Eſtates, for the Damage and Intereſt, ſuffered and to be ſuffered till due Reſtitution and Reparation.

XXIX. And for this Cauſe, the Captains and Privateers ſhall be obliged for the future, each of them, before their Departure, to give good and reſponſible Security before competent Judges, in the Sum of 15000 Livres Tournois, each of them to anſwer in the whole, for the Miſdemeanours which they may commit in their Cruiſing, and for their Captains and Officers Contraventions of the preſent Treaty, and of his Majeſty's Ordinances and Edicts, which ſhall be publiſhed by Vertue, and in Conformity to the Tenour hereof, on pain of the Loſs and Nullity of their Commiſſions and Licences; which ſhall alſo be practiced in like Manner by the Subjects of the ſaid Lords the States-General.

XXX. If it happen, that any of the ſaid French Captains make Prize of a Ship laden with the ſaid Contraband Goods, as is already ſaid, the ſaid Captains ſhall not cauſe to be opened or broken up the Cheſts, Mails, Bales, Bags, Tuns and Boxes, or Remove, Sell, Exchange, or otherwiſe alienate them, till they are landed in Preſence of the Judges of the Admiralty, and an Inventory by them taken of the ſaid Merchandize found in the ſaid Veſſels; unleſs the ſaid Contraband Goods being part of the Cargo, the Maſter or Commander of the Ship, think fit and agree, to deliver up the ſaid Contraband Goods to the ſaid Captain, and to purſue his Voyage; in which Caſe the ſaid Maſter or Commander ſhall in no wiſe be hindred from purſuing his Voyage.

XXXI. His Majeſty being willing, that the Subjects of the ſaid Lords the States General, ſhould be treated as favourably in all Countries of his Dominion, as his own Subjects, will give all the neceſſary Orders that the Judgments and Arrets concerning Prizes taken at Sea, ſhall be paſs'd with all Juſtice and Equity, by Perſons not ſuſpected nor concern'd in the Fact in Queſtion: And his Majeſty will give poſitive and effectual Orders that all Arrets, Judgments and Orders of Juſtice iſſued already, or hereafter to be iſſued, ſhall be ſpeedily and duly executed, according to their Forms.

XXXII. And when the Ambaſſadors of the ſaid Lords the States General, or any other of their Publick Miniſters at his Majeſty's Court, ſhall complain of the ſaid Judgments, his Majeſty will cauſe the ſaid Judgments to be review'd in his Council, to examine whether the Orders and Precautions contain'd in the preſent Treaty, have been follow'd and obſerv'd, and to provide therein according to Reaſon, which ſhall be done within the Term of 3 Months at moſt; and yet neither before the firſt Judgment nor after it, during the Review, the Goods and Effects, which ſhall be reclaim'd, ſhall not be ſold or unladen, unleſs by the Conſent of the Parties concerned, to ſave the ſaid Merchandize from periſhing.

XXXIII. When Proceſs ſhall be enter'd in the firſt and ſecond Inſtance, againſt thoſe who ſhall take Prizes by Sea, and the Perſons therein concerned; and that the ſaid Perſons ſhall come to obtain a favourable Judgment or Arret, the ſaid Judgment, or Arret ſhall be Executed under Security, notwithſtanding the Appeal of him who takes the Prize, but not on the contrary; and what is mention'd in this and the foregoing Articles, for procuring due and ſpeedy Juſtice to the Subjects of the United Provinces, concerning Prizes taken at Sea by his Majeſty's Subjects, ſhall be underſtood and practis'd by the Lords the States General, with regard to Prizes taken by their Subjects, from thoſe of his Majeſty.

XXXIV. His Majeſty and the Lords the States General, may at all times cauſe to be Built or Hired in each others Countries, what number of Ships they pleaſe, either for War or Commerce, as alſo Buy what Quantity of Warlike Ammunitions they want, and ſhall uſe their Authority that the ſaid Ships and Ammunition may be bought and ſold at a fair and reaſonable Price; but his ſaid Majeſty, and the Lords the States General ſhall not grant the ſame Permiſſion to the ſaid Enemies of both, in caſe the ſaid Enemies be the Aggreſſors.

XXXV. When Men of War or Merchant Ships are drove aſhoar, by Tempeſt or other Accidents, upon the Coaſts of either Ally, the ſaid Ships, Rigging, Goods and Merchandize, and what ſhall be ſaved; or the Produce, if the ſaid things, being periſhable, are ſold, the Whole being reclaimed by the Proprietors, or others poſſeſs'd of the Lading and a Power, within a Year and a Day, ſhall be reſtored without Form of Proceſs, paying only the reaſonable Charges, and what ſhall be regulated between the ſaid Allies for the Right of Salvage; and in caſe of Contravention of the preſent Article, his Majeſty, and the ſaid Lords the States-General, promiſe effectually to employ their Authority for puniſhing, with all poſſible Severity, ſuch of their Subjects as ſhall be found guilty of ſuch Inhumanity as has been ſometimes committed, on the like Occaſion, to their great Regret.

XXXVI. His Majeſty, and the ſaid Lords the States General, will not admit, nor ſuffer their Subjects to admit into the Countries under their Obedience any Pyrates whatſoever, but purſue, puniſh, and drive them from their Ports; and the Ships plunder'd, as well as the Goods taken by the ſaid Pyrates, which ſhall be found on board, ſhall be immediately, and without Form of Proceſs, frankly reſtored to the Proprietors, who ſhall reclaim them.

XXXVII. The Inhabitants and Subjects on both Sides, may every where within the Dominions of the ſaid Lord the King, and the ſaid Lords the States General, make uſe of ſuch Advocates, Procurators, Notaries, and Solicitors, as they think fit, who ſhall be commiſſioned for that End by the ordinary Judges when there is Occaſion, and the ſaid Judges be required; and the ſaid Subjects and Inhabitants on both Sides, ſhall be permitted to keep, in the Places where they ſhall take up their Reſidence, the Books of their Traffick and Correſpondence in what Language they pleaſe, without being moleſted or examined on that Account.

XXXVIII. No Conſuls ſhall be admitted on either ſide for the future; and if it is thought neceſſary to ſend Reſidents, Agents, Commiſſaries, or others, they ſhall not ſettle their Abode, but in the Places of ordinary Reſidence of the Court.

XXXIX. His Majeſty, and the ſaid Lords the States General, ſhall not ſuffer any Man of War, or other Ship in the Commiſſion and Service of any Prince, Republick, or Town, whatſoever, to take any Prize, in the Ports, Harbours, or any Rivers which belong to them, from the Subjects of either; and in caſe this ſhould happen, his ſaid Majeſty and the ſaid Lords the States General ſhall uſe their Authority and Force, to cauſe reaſonable Satisfaction and Reſtitution to be made.

XL. If thro' Inadvertency or otherwiſe, the preſent Treaty ſhould be diſregarded or contraven'd, on the part of his ſaid Majeſty, or the ſaid Lords the States-General, and their Succeſſors, it ſhall nevertheleſs ſubſiſt in all its Force, without a Rupture of Confederacy, Friendſhip, and good Correſpondence, upon that Account: But the ſaid Contraventions ſhall ſpeedily be made good; and if they proceed from the Fault of any private Subjects, they alone ſhall be puniſhed and chaſtiſed for the ſame.

XLI. And for the greater Security of the Commerce and Friendſhip between the Subjects of the ſaid King, and thoſe of the ſaid Lords the States-General of the United Provinces of the Netherlands for the future, it has been granted and agreed, That if any Interruption of Friendſhip or a Rupture ſhould hereafter happen between the Crown of France, and the ſaid States of the United Provinces, (which God forbid) the Subjects on both Sides ſhall have 9 Months time, after the ſaid Rupture, to retire with their Effects, and to tranſport them where they think fit. Which they ſhall be allowed to do, as alſo to ſell or tranſport their Effects and Moveables, with all Freedom, without any Hindrance, and without proceeding, during the ſaid Term of 9 Months, to any Seizure of their Goods, much leſs to the Arreſt of their Perſons.

XLII. All that might in any manner hinder, directly or indirectly, the Execution of the preſent Treaty, and eſpecially of the 7th Article, ſhall be prevented on both Sides, as much as poſſible; and they oblige themſelves, upon the leaſt Complaints of any Contraventions, to cauſe them to be immediately made good.

XLIII.

XLIII. The preſent Treaty of Commerce, Navigation, and Marine, ſhall hold 25 Years, to commence from the Day of Signing; and the Ratifications thereof ſhall be given in good Form, and exchanged on both Sides in the ſpace of 3 Weeks, to reckon from the Day of Signing, or ſooner, if poſſible.

XLIV. And for the greater Security of this Treaty of Commerce, and of all the Points and Articles contained therein, the ſaid preſent Treaty ſhall be publiſhed, verified, and regiſtered in the Court of the Parliament of Paris, and in all other Parliaments of the Kingdom of France, and Chamber of Accompts of Paris aforeſaid; as likewiſe the ſaid Treaty ſhall be publiſhed, verified, and regiſtered, by the ſaid Lords the States-General, in the Courts and other Places, where Publications, Verifications, and Regiſters are uſed to be kept or made.
